

Walking day #72...Friday, October 12, 2012...farewell Wyoming, hello South Dakota

Posted on Oct 13, Posted by Administrator Category The Walk Blog

well since I did NOT freeze to death yesterday I thought I may as well walk today...sunny all day and before noon I was down to short sleeved yellow...managed 20.6 miles with 38,584 steps...findings for the day (in Wyoming) 2 pennies and a car wash token...sightings for the day: antelope...yesterday was about 16 miles in Montana and 4 in Wyoming, today was 16 miles in Wyoming and 4 in South Dakota...chatted briefly with Toni and Jeremy and their two dogs who were on a road trip from Oregon and Jerry Williams, a veteran from Montana...always nice to meet the locals or fellow travelers...and a hearty thanks again to all the truckers who give me a wide berth and a few blasts on the horn...still looking for a replacement driver (adventurers out there!?!?!?)...making every effort to get south fast, after tomorrow it will be just about constant south, enough cold...thanks to my eldest child, Staci for sending my "care" package with mail, a new soap dispenser bottle AND new socks!!!!...see ya'll down the road...love 'n kisses to all

Tags: Untagged